

Research Websites

- Encyclopedia Mythica
<http://www.pantheon.org/>
The mythology section is divided into six geographical regions: Africa, Americas, Asia, Europe, Middle East and Oceania. Each region has clearly defined subdivisions. The folklore section contains general folklore, Arthurian legends and folktales from many lands. There is also a bestiary, legendary heroes, image gallery and genealogical tables of various pantheons.
- Gods and Goddesses of the World
<http://www.seanachaidh.com/godgoddess.html>
A decent list of the pantheons of different religions.
- Internet Ancient History Sourcebook
<http://www.fordham.edu/halsall/ancient/asbook.html>
Loads and loads of links to articles and sites about anything you wanted to know about the ancient world. There is also a Medieval Sourcebook and a Modern History Sourcebook.
- How Stuff Works
<http://www.howstuffworks.com/>
Self-explanatory. Literally explains how stuff works.
- Ancient History on About.com
<http://ancienthistory.about.com/>
Lots of useful information but you need to know what you're looking for.
- Gods, Heroes and Myth
<http://www.gods-heros-myth.com/grmain.html>
Just as advertised but broken down in an understandable way.
- Timeless Myths
<http://www.timelessmyths.com/>
More myths divided into classical, Norse, Celtic and Arthurian.
- Obscure Goddess Online Directory
<http://www.thaliatook.com/OGOD/ogod.html>
One of my favorites devoted to Goddesses.
- Crystalinks Ancient and Lost Civilizations
<http://www.crystalinks.com/ancient.html>
Good jumping off point if you're looking for something to kickstart your creativity.

- Pib Burns Cryptozoology
<http://www.pibburns.com/cryptozo.htm>
Want to read about weird creatures? Here's the place to find some.
- Sacred Texts Archive
<http://www.sacred-texts.com/index.htm>
Out-of-print, obscure and just plain weird books (the full text) about almost anything from Atlantis to Zoroastrianism. Want to read what Plato has to say about Atlantis without going to the library, this is the spot.
- World Mysteries
<http://www.world-mysteries.com/index.html>
Another weird stuff site but full of interesting tidbits to make you go hmm.
- Skeptic's Dictionary
<http://www.skeptdic.com/>
The other side to some of the weird stuff you're going to find on the other sites.
- Rick Richards
<http://www.rickrichards.com>
A little bit of everything here, from Jesus to Mayan temples with lots of pictures.
